ESL Warm-up Activity

To kick off the Have You Ever ESL Lesson Plans, start with a fun and interactive activity. Prepare a set of cards with various life experiences written on them, such as "traveled to another country," "learned to play a musical instrument," or "tried exotic food." Distribute the cards to the students and have them ask each other if they have ever done the activity listed on their card. This will not only get the students talking and interacting but also introduce them to the structure of the present perfect tense. Encourage them to use complete sentences, such as "Have you ever traveled to another country?" This activity sets the tone for the lesson by getting students engaged in conversation and using the target language.

Main ESL Lesson Activities

Vocabulary Activity: Life Experience Match

To reinforce the vocabulary related to life experiences, create a matching game. Prepare cards with life experiences written on one set and corresponding pictures or descriptions on another set. Divide the class into pairs or small groups and have them match the experiences with the correct pictures or descriptions. Encourage discussions within the groups to explain their choices.

Listening Activity: Have You Ever Interview

Pair up the students and have them take turns interviewing each other using the

"Have You Ever" questions. One student asks the questions while the other listens and responds. Then they switch roles. This activity not only improves listening skills but also provides ample opportunity for speaking practice.

Roleplay Activity: Sharing Experiences

Divide the class into small groups and assign each group a different scenario, such as planning a vacation, attending a concert, or trying a new activity. Each student takes on a role and shares their experiences related to the scenario, using the present perfect tense. This encourages creativity, collaboration, and speaking in context.

Reading and Writing Activity: Personal Reflection

Ask students to write about a memorable experience they have had using the present perfect tense. After writing, have them share their stories with a partner or in small groups. This activity allows for individual reflection, writing practice, and group discussion.

ESL Homework Assignment

For homework, students are encouraged to interview a family member or friend using the "Have You Ever" questions. They should take note of the responses and be prepared to share the experience in the next class. Additionally, students can write a short paragraph reflecting on their own memorable experiences using the present perfect tense. This assignment reinforces the lesson content and provides an opportunity for real-life application of language skills.
